New Year's Press Release

For Immediate Release — January 1st, 2026

Global Virtual Model United Nations (GVMUN) Announces Secretariat Promotions and Strategic Expansion Plans for the New Year

The Global Virtual Model United Nations (GVMUN) is proud to announce significant leadership promotions within its Secretariat alongside an ambitious slate of initiatives planned for the upcoming year. These developments reflect GVMUN's continued growth as a leading student-driven international organization and its renewed commitment to advancing global education, diplomacy, and youth leadership on a worldwide scale.

As part of this announcement, GVMUN confirms the promotion of Wyatt Janczewski from Journalism Director to Undersecretary-General, as well as the appointment of Jackson Dorris as the organization's new Secretary-General. Together, these leadership changes mark a new chapter for GVMUN, one defined by strengthened governance, expanded opportunities, and deeper engagement with global institutions.

Founded on the principles of diplomacy, collaboration, and international understanding, GVMUN connects students from around the world through high-quality Model United Nations programming, research initiatives, and leadership development opportunities. Entering the new year, the organization remains focused on expanding both its reach and its impact.

Leadership Appointments & Promotions

Wyatt Janczewski - Undersecretary-General

Wyatt Janczewski has been promoted to Undersecretary-General following his distinguished service as GVMUN's Journalism Director. During his tenure, Janczewski played a pivotal role in expanding and professionalizing GVMUN's journalism and media operations, elevating the quality of written coverage, internal communications, and public-facing materials. His leadership helped ensure that GVMUN's work—both within conferences and beyond—was documented with clarity, accuracy, and purpose.

Beyond journalism, Janczewski has consistently demonstrated strategic insight, organizational leadership, and a deep commitment to GVMUN's mission. In his new role as Undersecretary-General, he will support executive leadership, oversee cross-departmental initiatives, and contribute to long-term institutional planning. His promotion reflects both his past contributions and the confidence placed in his ability to help guide GVMUN through its next phase of growth.

Jackson Dorris - Secretary-General

GVMUN also proudly announces the appointment of Jackson Dorris as Secretary-General. As the organization's chief executive officer, the Secretary-General is responsible for setting strategic direction, overseeing the Secretariat, and representing GVMUN in external partnerships and institutional relationships.

Dorris brings a clear vision for the organization rooted in strategic expansion, academic rigor, and meaningful student engagement. As Secretary-General, he will prioritize strengthening internal structures, expanding opportunities for members, and positioning GVMUN as a respected platform for emerging global leaders. His leadership will emphasize collaboration, professionalism, and innovation, ensuring that GVMUN continues to evolve while remaining true to its core values.

Organizational Vision for the New Year

Looking ahead, GVMUN is preparing for a year of ambitious growth and innovation across all areas of its work.

Increased Engagement with the United Nations

A central priority for the coming year is deeper engagement with the United Nations and its affiliated programs. GVMUN aims to increase educational alignment with real-world UN initiatives, offering members enhanced exposure to international diplomacy, global policymaking, and institutional processes. These efforts are designed to provide students with pathways that bridge academic simulation and real-world global engagement.

Expansion of Conferences & Programming

GVMUN plans to expand both the number and scope of its conferences, introducing new formats, specialized committees, and broader international participation. These conferences will continue to emphasize substantive debate, rigorous research, and inclusive participation, while also exploring innovative approaches to Model UN education.

Academic & Intellectual Initiatives

The upcoming year will also see a significant expansion of GVMUN's academic programming. Planned initiatives include essay competitions, Secretariat-led research projects, and the development of publications such as policy briefs and analytical reports. These opportunities will allow students to engage deeply with global issues, contribute original scholarship, and build skills relevant to higher education and future careers.

Internships & Professional Development

GVMUN is committed to providing members with meaningful professional development opportunities. Expanded internship programs will offer higher levels of responsibility, particularly for advanced and returning members. Participants will gain practical experience in research, writing, diplomacy, leadership, and organizational management—skills that extend far beyond the conference setting.

Additional Growth Initiatives

Further initiatives include the development of partnerships with schools, universities, and aligned organizations, as well as new strategies to enhance member engagement and institutional sustainability. Together, these efforts aim to strengthen GVMUN's credibility, reach, and long-term impact.

Commitment to Students & Global Education

At its core, GVMUN remains dedicated to empowering young leaders and promoting global awareness through accessible, high-quality educational opportunities. The organization is committed to excellence, inclusivity, and innovation, ensuring that students from diverse backgrounds can engage meaningfully with international affairs and develop the skills necessary to lead in an increasingly interconnected world.

Looking Ahead

With new leadership appointments and a bold agenda for the year ahead, GVMUN enters the new year positioned for continued success. The organization invites students, educators, and partners to join in this next chapter – participating in upcoming programs, engaging with new initiatives, and contributing to a global community committed to dialogue, diplomacy, and leadership.
